ABOUT FOX HOPYARD: Fox Hopyard Golf Club opened for play in 2001 but its roots and pedigree were established far before. In 1988 Massachusetts businessman Bill Sandri purchased an ambitious yet stalled golf development in Bernardston, MA called Crumpin-Fox Club. Bill brought back the Robert Trent Jones Sr team that had started the project to complete the task. The entire 18 holes were opened in 1990 to popular acclaim from its golfing patrons and critical acclaim from the media. The golf course ascended to the top, or near the top of, every media platform course ranking. At the same time the golf operation model became one of the most copied in the Northeast. The skyrocketing success of Crumpin-Fox opened many doors for Mr. Sandri and his next golf project was to develop and open Fox Hollow in Trinity, Florida just a few miles from his winter base at Innisbrook Golf Resort in Palm Harbor. The Fox Hollow opening in 1994 and continued success in golf spurred Bill to seek out his next "field of dreams", this time he set his sights on Southeast Connecticut. The "Hopyard" as it is affectionately called by its members is warm and welcoming, a place where members and guests feel right at home.
